This Professional Supervision unit explores in depth the socio-political, cultural and organisational context of supervision, theory and frameworks for its use in professional settings.

About Professional Supervision

High quality social work supervision is integral to high standards of social work practice. ACAP’s Professional Supervision unit helps students develop the skills needed to be effective and ethical supervisors.

This unit forms part of ACAP’s Master of Social Work, but can also be taken as a single unit. This unit can be used towards professional development.

Why study this standalone unit?

ACAP’s Professional Supervision unit will provide health and welfare practitioners with an opportunity to update their supervisory knowledge and skills and learn what is new in the area of professional supervision.

This unit gives students the opportunity to practice different approaches to supervision and reflect on their efficacy in different cultural and organisational contexts. Individual, group, peer and workplace supervision will be explored with a critical and reflective lens.

Students will be encouraged to develop their own supervisory styles through the use of case studies, role plays, and difficult scenarios with class discussion.

Entry requirements

A Bachelor degree in social work or a cognate area (for example, social sciences, psychology, community and welfare work, nursing, allied health, or counselling).

Course details

Campus locations:

ACAP Sydney Campus

Level 5, 11 York Street

Sydney NSW 2000

Duration:

One trimester

Want to find out more?

Call 1800 061 199 or email info.acap@navitas.com

---

Australian College of Applied Psychology

T 1800 061 199

E info.acap@navitas.com

National CRICOS Provider code: 01328A

facebook.com/acapstudents

@acapstudents

acap.edu.au